

NO MAY BUILDING VOTE

City, County Officials Differ

... ON SITE, METHODS

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A City-County Building bond issue clearly will not go on the May 12 ballot.

Only slightly less clear was whether a joint proposal would ever go on the ballot as the City Council and County Board locked horns Monday during an informal session.

"At least," commented one councilman privately afterwards, "all the differences are now out in the open."

Split On Philosophy

The two bodies appeared almost irrevocably split on basic philosophy as to location and management procedures. Board Chairman William Grossman said the county wouldn't go for a building authority and would insist the voters should be given the opportunity to vote on location. He said the present courthouse site was preferable not only from a cost standpoint but from other considerations, which he did not enumerate.

"I don't think the city can stop the business district from going east with a city-county building straddling O at 15th," he said. "I think the Bartholomew and Barton-Aschman plans are false."

Council Vice Chairman John Comstock said the council hadn't polled itself on location, but he felt they would favor a 15th street or downtown location.

"The council is concerned with downtown Lincoln more than the county," suggested Councilman John Mason.

'Not Voters Concern'

Comstock said the location shouldn't concern the voters, but should be left to the selection of a building authority.

"I don't think a majority of the voters care where it goes, only that it gets built."

Grossman said the city and county shouldn't delegate the building's construction or location to a building authority, but the two governing bodies should do the job.

He proposed a 1917 statute be used instead of the later building authority act.

Under the 1917 law, the two governmental subdivisions would execute an agreement covering the amount of bonds, their financing and the location of the building and submit it to the voters for approval or disapproval.

He proposed an executive committee composed of two councilmen, two commissioners and a fifth member chosen at large — such as a district judge — manage the building.

Change Suggested

Mason suggested the building authority could be re-constituted with its membership composed of councilmen and commissioners, but Grossman said the voters would have no control over location as is possible in the 1947 law.

The council and board agreed no bond proposal could be readied before the March 28 deadline for notice of election.

The county representatives — Kenneth Bourne and Grossman — acquiesced in city proposals that the two bond methods be submitted to the New York bond attorney firm of Woods, Klag and Dawson for a legal appraisal of the 1947 law and the later building authority act.

The city also said an independent real estate appraisal of the two blocks at 15th and O and the two county-owned blocks at the courthouse site would be sought.

Mason attempted to feel out the county representatives as to whether the 15th and O site would be acceptable if its cost were no greater than the courthouse site to the two governments.

There has been some private speculation that the cost of the 15th and O site might be contributed from private sources.

Grossman didn't directly answer Mason's questions, but insisted the bond issue "wouldn't have a chance" unless the location were submitted to the voters.

Several council members suggested the two bodies should show leadership and sell the bond issue to the voters, but the county chairman said he felt "the county's only duty is to submit a proposal to the voters."

Council Liberalizes City Liquor Policy

The City Council Monday liberalized Lincoln's long-standing beer and liquor policy to permit package-sale outlets in the suburban areas.

The council adopted the policy change by a 4-3 vote: For — John Comstock, John Mason, Ervin Petersen and Ed Becker. Against — Mrs. Helen Boosalis, Lloyd Hinkley and D. L. Tyrrell.

In the voting, Tyrrell shifted from an earlier indicated position, but then rejoined the majority in approving the transfer of two licenses (a beer and a package liquor) to Gateway Shopping Center.

Approved on a 5-2 vote for transfer from downtown locations was a package liquor license held by Robert C. Guenzel and Charles Moon and an off-sale beer license held by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ellsworth.

Hearing on the application of Leroy Baughman to transfer his package liquor license to 1601 South will be set later.

Special Committee

The resolution was introduced jointly by Mason, Comstock and Petersen, who served as a special committee in developing what they said was a "workable plan" if the city wished to make a change.

The plan, when proposed two weeks ago, had resulted in one of the largest public hearings in recent City Hall history.

The new policy resolution — continues the described downtown Lincoln business area and the Havelock commercial district as on-sale beer districts and extends the present Havelock area by two blocks from 60th to 65th.

—permits off-sale beer and package liquor outlets in the "major centers" or "highway commercial" areas described as Gateway Shopping Center and environs at Cotner and O; 48th from Vine to O, South from 10th to 17th; O from 46th to 56th; Indian Village shopping area between 10th and 14th, High to Calvert; West O from U.S. 6 by-pass to Burlington Ave., and the Portion of Cornhusker Hwy. from 14th to 73rd within the city limits.

Mac Tours Viet Nam; Progress Being Made

Hoa Hao, Viet Nam (AP)—In a khaki uniform covered with dust, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara helicopter landed around South Viet Nam's Mekong River delta Monday and said he saw progress being made.

But here in this village 100 miles west of Saigon, tragedy struck his mission. A U.S. Army helicopter flying security cover in the Communist-infested flatlands lost power and crashed into a field. Two crewmen were killed; the pilot and co-pilot survived. McNamara missed seeing it by minutes, but turned grim when told about it later.

The crash marred what seemed an otherwise successful trip for McNamara, who came here for the second time since December on a mission to learn what's going wrong in Viet Nam's war against a strengthened and aggressive force of Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Cheered

With the Vietnamese premier, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, at his side, McNamara spoke in three places to the people living in this troubled countryside. Each time he was cheered and greeted enthusiastically. He promised the United States would see the war through to victory for South Viet Nam and called on the people to give their full support to Khanh and what he is doing.

Later, riding with a reporter in a small three-wheeled scooter conveyance, McNamara said he noted progress in the countryside since he visited in December. He credited Khanh's efforts to bring order out of the chaos in the Vietnamese government since the overthrow and slaying of President Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1-2.

"I'm delighted to see the contact Gen. Khanh is making with the people and their enthusiastic support," McNamara said in the brief interview. "The war will depend on their enthusiasm."

Declines Comment

McNamara declined comment on speculation that the United States may be considering carrying the war to Communist North Viet Nam, but said:

"I think the thing to concentrate on is winning the war down here. One thing you can be sure of — we intend to continue our support for Viet Nam. The first thing is to overcome the insurgency in South Viet Nam. This should be their objective and ours."

In Hoa Hao, McNamara met members of the Buddhist religious sect founded 25 years ago and named after the village. He spoke to them at their pagoda, giving the speech he repeated in other places.

In the speeches, McNamara said President Johnson had directed him to say that, "We promise Gen. Khanh, his government and people full and complete support in the war against the Viet Cong." He added that the United States will continue to supply military and economic aid. Then in praise of Khanh, McNamara said:

"He has our great admiration and respect, and our full support. He will need yours as well. Together we shall bring peace, security and prosperity to this beautiful country of yours."

Polaris Out If Laborites Take Office

London (AP)—The Labor Party will cancel Britain's agreement to build its own Polaris-missile submarines if it wins power in this year's election, party leader Harold Wilson said Monday night.

The chief of the opposition to the Conservative government was asked about the Polaris agreement in a television interview.

"Is it correct that you would cancel the Polaris agreement?" asked interviewer Robin Day.

"Yes. There is no ambiguity," replied Wilson.

"Britain will cease this pretense of being a nuclear power," Wilson said.

He said Britain's plans to "buy or hire" Polaris submarines adds nothing to Western defense capabilities. "In terms of strength it is like a dried pea on top of a mountain," he added.

Wilson made one hedge to his rejection of Britain's Polaris program. He said that if the submarines are well advanced in construction, Labor would not scrap them, but try to convert them into nuclear-powered hunter-killer subs, without the Polaris missiles.

The Polaris agreement was made at Nassau in December 1962 between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan and has been advanced by the Macmillan government and its successor, the Conservative regime of Prime Minister Douglas-Home.

The United States had canceled the Skybolt program for building a long-range missile for Britain's V-bombers, and the Conservative government wanted a replacement.

No sooner was the Polaris agreement made than the navy began work on Britain's Polaris subs.

Antiques? Not This Pair

... FAIRFIELD SENIOR CITIZENS ACTIVE

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairfield —It's OK to call their cigar counter an antique, but oldtimers "J. V." and "S. C." are both too useful to be counted in the same category.

An amazingly effervescent 85, druggist J. V. Deines has been a pill-pusher seven full decades — though "only" 59 years in the same store. His dentist sidekick across the street, Dr. S. C. Adkins, is 79 and will complete 50 years' local practice this spring.

"We get together nearly every day for a coffee break without coffee," apprised the doc, still long on push but short enough on pull that he's quit extractions. "I still buy my cigars from Deines' pride, this same old mahogany humidor."

"But it takes a lot of cigar sales to make up for all my fillings," retorted the druggist, wiry enough to be on the job daily but cagey enough to have cut the work load.

Closes Early

"I wore out two soda fountains, but quit that part of the business before letting another one wear me out. Don't stay open every night like I used to either. Life's too short for that."

For years after the two threw in with Fairfield, Deines put up his own river lee for the first of three generations' phosphates. One mild winter forced him to ship in an ice supply from Storm Lake, Iowa.

Even the fattest purses have never tempted the pharmacist to part with his apothecary jars and curled-wire ice cream tables.

Like J. V., they're still proving their usefulness.

Honored several months ago as the town's oldest businessmen, the two shared reminiscences of when Fairfield had a population twice that of its present 495. It also boasted four doctors, three druggists and a veterinarian.

Only Dentist

"I've always been the only dentist, though," recalled Dr. Adkins, "ever since I came to town single and roomed with the Deines family."

The graduate of the old Lincoln Dental College has been an educational mainstay, heading the school board for all but one of the 27 years he served on it. He was also a town board member.

Talking but little of retirement, the two have no plans for future fishing trips and such together. They also deny having teamed on any town mischief through the years.

The latter, however, prompted a joshing accusation from Mrs. Helen Bullock, drug store clerk who has overheard their combined chuckles for years:

"Maybe no mischief together, but what about all that separate stuff you've talked about?"

Tenuous Cease-Fire Quiets Guns In Fierce Ktima Battle

Nicosia, Cyprus (AP)—A tenuous cease-fire silenced the guns in flaming Ktima Monday after Greek Cypriots in day-long fighting claimed to have brought beleaguered Turkish Cypriots there to the point of surrender.

Despite U.N. truce efforts, other incidents flared throughout Cyprus, bringing the troubled eastern Mediterranean island to a new brink of all-out fighting such as erupted last Christmas.

Newsmen at the scene in Ktima said they believed two Turks had been killed and 18 wounded and one Greek slain and 13 wounded in the fighting. The Greeks surrounded the Turks deep inside the Turkish quarter, and the Greeks claimed the Turks were ready to surrender.

Appeared Ready

A British army spokesman also said the Turks appeared ready to give up. But a Turkish spokesman said they would never surrender.

There were reports that the cease-fire was authorized both by Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios and Turkish Cypriot Vice President Fazil Kuchuk and that peace talks would be held Tuesday.

Before the fighting stopped inside the city of 6,000 Greeks and 3,000 Turks Turkish leader Aziz Altay had been lifted out of the surrounded quarter into the Greek sector by a British helicopter for peace talks.

What Else

"What can he do but surrender," one Briton said. "They're completely surrounded and getting the hell kicked out of them." Associated Press photo.

grapher Eddie Worth flew over the stricken area in a British helicopter and reported, "It was just like a war operation."

He said a heavy pall of smoke rolled up from unchecked fires blazing in the Turkish quarter. The clomp clomp of mortar fire could be heard and dust was kicked up by bullets glancing off the last remaining minaret in town.

Blasted

Earlier, Greek forces had blasted down the Yeni Cami mosque which they said was used as a gunpost.

Some of the British forces inside the quarter could be seen sitting on the curb nonchalantly as bullets whizzed overhead.

The fighting at Ktima and violence elsewhere raised a stern challenge to U.N. and British truce officials. They had been trying to hold down the lid until an international peace force could be formed and sped to Cyprus. The U.N. is having trouble recruiting such a force.

Cut Off

About 100 British troops were cut off inside the Turkish quarter in Ktima Monday and were under fire and answered in self defense, the British said. There were no casualties among the British.

The fighting in Ktima appeared to be an effort to show that the Greek Cypriots were running the show on the island — not the British or the Turkish Cypriots. The Greeks have repeatedly accused British Tommies of interfering with Greek Cypriot security forces and of providing a shield for the Turks. The Greek Cypriots also have accused the Turks of seeking ceasefires only to give them time to regroup for new incidents.

In the last action of the day in Ktima, a newsman at the spot reported, nine Turkish Cypriots armed with shotguns took on a Greek Cypriot armored bulldozer, and after intense firing lasting a bout three minutes, the bulldozer wheeled and departed from the scene.

Another Greek Cypriot bulldozer was disabled by a Turkish landmine, newsmen said.

N.Y. Strike Mediator Becomes Group Therapist

... SOCIOLOGICAL JARGON LITTLE HELP IN LABOR DISPUTE

By RAY KOHN
New York (AP)—"There's no shortage of brains in this crowd. All we lack is understanding."

They were the words Monday of a weary management negotiator as a marathon mediation session began in efforts to resolve a 20-day strike of social workers against six Jewish welfare agencies.

This is conflict on a high level. Rapier-like verbal thrusts are exchanged by the combatants — all of whom are facile in the use of sociological jargon.

Group Therapist For instance, both sides refer to Miss Eva Robbins, New York State mediator, as "our group therapist."

And Mary L. Gottesfeld, union president and child-guidance worker, word-painted the opposition: "They're ambivalent. They don't react to our proposals, they give us their emotional response."

Countered an agency negotiator: "They're involved in an identity crisis. They're caught up in a conflict between their identification as union members and their professional responsibilities to their clients."

Mundane Issue

The issues in the strike are mundane enough. The 1,031 workers seek a wage and hour package that is estimated to cost $3 million a year. The agencies have offered to what amounts to a third of the total demands of the union, Local 1707 of the Community and Social Agency Employees.

Miss Robbins, asked how she felt after a 13-hour negotiating session that recessed at 1:15 a.m. Monday, replied: "Colorless."

She said, however, that "some progress" had been made.

A native of New Toronto, Can., Miss Robbins, who obtained her law degree at St. John's College, Brooklyn, for seven years was an assistant director of industrial relations at the Borden Co. She joined the state mediation service in 1957.

Even lawyers in the labor dispute have been caught up in the social workers' phraseology. During Sunday night's session, one attorney shouted that he was "emotionally disturbed" by a proposal. A case worker bounced back the phrase by saying that the lawyer probably meant "emotionally upset."

Both sides are trying to analyze the "feeling tones" of the sessions.

Well Matched

Unlike most labor disputes, personnel on both sides are at least intellectually matched having gone to the same schools, received the same professional training and belonging to the same professional organizations.

One mediator, not identified, recalled almost wistfully the rough and tumble word battles—featuring more pithy words — such as are heard during negotiation of longshoremen's or truck drivers' labor disputes. At least, said the mediator, there are no "endless psychoanalyzing."

Trap Snares 'Bandit Priests' At Maryknoll Mission

Maryknoll, N.Y. (UPI) — Four bandits dressed as priests robbed the Maryknoll Roman Catholic mission post office Monday. But they walked into a police trap and a wild gunbattle erupted when they tried to shoot their way out with $50,000 and a blank check on the federal treasury.

Three of the bandits were shot and captured with the loot. A policeman was wounded in the hand and the fourth bandit, who escaped, probably was wounded, too.

The nuns and priests at the mission, located in the heart of Rip Van Winkle country, had been taken out of danger.

The trap had been laid so well that "Sister Frances," the nun working in the post office, was a lady cop and a priest the bandits tried to kidnap as a hostage was a deputy sheriff in disguise.

Maryknoll is about 35 miles north of New York City and located in the heart of the setting Washington Irving used for his legend of Sleepy Hollow.

New York City police first received a tip that the robbery was being planned. That was before Christmas.

Since then the suspects have been "tailed" by police and when they were ready to make their move Monday more than 50 city policemen, state troopers, deputies, postal inspectors and detectives from the district attorney's office were on hand armed with shotguns, rifles and sub-machineguns.

Captured

Captured were Robert Stephen Mosher, 27, Richard Bracken, 22 and Eddie Reid, 31, all of New York City. The fourth bandit was not immediately identified.

Mosher, Bracken and Reid were rushed to a hospital but only Bracken, shot in both sides, was considered seriously hurt.

Lt. John Jennings of the New York City police was in a second floor window firing down on the bandits when one of their slugs struck him in the hand. He was not seriously hurt.

No Collars

It was 9:20 a.m. when the bandits, dressed in dark coats, trousers and hats but without white collars, drove up to the post office in a late model Dodge automobile. Three of them sauntered inside. The fourth went around the side of the building to overpower the priest that makes a daily bank deposit.

Westchester County Sheriff John F. Hoy had ordered Deputy Francis Conklin to pose as the priest. It was the bandit that was assigned to overpower him that dropped his gun and escaped when the fighting started.

"We had Deputy Sheriff Frances Anderson dressed in a nun's costume inside the post office," Hoy said. "She was sworn in by a post office inspector as an assistant postmaster."

All Alone

"She had been told to do what they said. She was alone when they entered, drew their guns and ordered her into a rest room."

Mrs. Anderson, who has been a deputy for 14 months said she wasn't scared, but just a bit nervous.

"They didn't look like bandits," she said. "They were polite. They ordered me to go into the ladies room and not come out for 20 minutes."

Cops Hiding

The Maryknoll mission, a 120 acre estate for the 200 seminarians, 200 nuns and novices and 25 priests, is made up of a complex of six buildings. It was behind doors and windows of these buildings that the police waited and watched the bandits as they rifled the post office safe.

"They put $50,000 worth of stamps and currency into two sacks and also took blank U.S. treasury checks and international money orders," a police spokesman said. "The potential value of the treasury checks is unlimited because they could be filled out for any amount."

The three bandits walked back out to their car, almost leisurely put the sacks into the trunk, then climbed in and waited for the fourth member of their team to join them with the priest hostage.

Shouted

It was then that Arthur Thela, chief criminal investigator for the Westchester county sheriff shouted into a bullhorn:

"Police! You're surrounded. Drop your guns. Give up."

Two of the bandits fired at Thela.

"Shoot! Give it to 'em," commanded Capt. George Lake, state police coordinator.

From behind doors, windows, trees and bushes, rifles and riot guns appeared pointed at the car and cut loose with a withering fire. The driver gunned the engine and tried to escape down the tree-lined drive, but the slugs pounding into the car sent it out of control and caused it to smush into a tree.

Father Albert Nevins, who helped police set up the trap, said the money in the post office came from subscriptions to publications of the Maryknoll fathers and from contributions to Maryknoll missions overseas.

EXPERT TESTIFIES: Ruby Blacked Out, Probably

Dallas (AP) — A Yale psychologist testified for the defense Monday that Jack Ruby probably was in a blacked out rage when he shot Lee Harvey Oswald and didn't know what he was doing.

"I believe that was the case," said Dr. Roy Schafer, the first mental expert called by the defense as the fourth week of Ruby's trial began. With the end of his testimony, an overnight recess was called.

Ruby is on trial for his life for the Nov. 24 shooting of Oswald, who was charged with the assassination two days earlier of President Kennedy.

Brain Damage

Earlier, under questioning by the defense, Dr. Schafer testified that Ruby suffered from organic brain damage. He said:

"I have come to the conclusion that he did have organic brain damage and most likely the specific nature of it was psychomotor epilepsy."

Psychomotor epilepsy is roughly defined as being characterized by an explosive mental state which can be triggered by strong emotional feelings.

Dr. Schafer's testimony was in line with defense contentions that Ruby did not know what he was doing when, under the shock of President Kennedy's death, he killed the accused assassin.

Ruby is pleading temporary insanity as his defense against the murder charge that carries a maximum penalty of death in the electric chair.

Always Unstable

Earlier, a series of witnesses testified that Ruby was always a highly unstable person given to screaming rages. They included former welterweight boxing champion Barney Ross, strip teaser Penny Dollar, and George Senator, Ruby's former roommate. The latter said Ruby acted "nutty" just before he shot Oswald.

Senator, 50, was a former roommate of Ruby in a two-bedroom Dallas apartment.

"The first time I saw him after it happened he had a look on him I'd never seen before. He was deeply upset."

By 4 a.m. the morning after the assassination, Senator said Ruby "had a sort of starey look — he was looking out into space."

Changed

Senator said he last saw Ruby about two hours before the Oswald shooting and said: "His condition had changed. It looked like it could be building up. He was mumbling. I asked him what he was mumbling about, but he didn't answer me."

Strip teaser Mrs. Patricia Ann Kohs, 21, a brunette who danced under the name of Penny Dollar, testified:

"One closing time, I called a cab. Another driver came up to the club to get someone. Something happened and Jack knocked him down the stairs and out the door. Jack began beating his (the driver's) head on the sidewalk. He stopped all of a sudden and said, 'Did I do this? Did I do this?'"

Lodge, Nixon Lead In First Returns In New Hampshire

Concord, N.H. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller battled head-to-head today as New Hampshire Republicans cast their ballots in the nation's first presidential primary of 1964.

The first returns came in shortly after midnight when the nine voters of the tiny northern hamlet of Dixville Noted took a slap at the two favored candidates and gave most of their votes to Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The Dixville votes were split, one for Goldwater, two for Rockefeller, three written for Lodge and three written for Nixon. Northern New Hampshire generally is considered Goldwater territory.

Lodge Picks Up Steam

The Arizona senator and Rockefeller, the pre-election favorites, were keeping a wary eye on Lodge, whose write-in drive picked up speed in the final days of the campaign.

Goldwater and Rockefeller wound up their campaigns with an exchange of sharply worded statements.

One widely circulated poll, taken Saturday, gave Goldwater a slim lead over his rivals. It showed Rockefeller tied with Lodge. Trailing them were Nixon, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith and Harold E. Stassen.

A late Weather Bureau forecast predicted generally cloudy and cold conditions for most of the state, with light snow in the north and rain, snow or sleet in the south. Possibly several inches of snow were forecast for higher sections in the more populous southern area. Gale warnings were displayed along the state's short coastline.

Half May Vote

Prior to the late forecast a turnout of 115,000 Republicans and 50,000 Democrats was expected. This would be nearly half of the state's registered voters, many of them also concerned with local issues. There was no expectation that the weather would greatly reduce the turnout.

Rockefeller campaigned until the last minute in the populous Manchester-Concord area, seeking any still uncommitted votes that would inch him ahead of Goldwater and stall the burgeoning write-in drive on behalf of Lodge.

Goldwater, on record that he was confident of victory, awaited the results in Washington where he was on hand for opening Senate debate on the civil rights bill. Lodge was in Viet Nam, still maintaining he was not a candidate.

Official Must Prove 'Malice' . . . COURT NULLIFIES JUDGMENT AGAINST N.Y. TIMES

Washington (AP) — A public official must prove "actual malice" is involved before he can collect libel damages for defamatory falsehoods relating to his official conduct, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

This interpretation of freedom of expression holds that "actual malice" can be established only if the one making a defamatory statement knows in advance that it is false or if it is made "with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not."

There were no dissents from the opinion written by Justice William O. Brennan Jr., but three justices wanted the court to go further in underscoring the right to freedom of expression.

Justices Arthur J. Goldberg, Hugo L. Black and William O. Douglas expressed vigorously their belief that the Constitution gives citizens and the press "unconditional freedom to criticize official conduct."

The decision nullified a $500,000 libel judgment awarded to a Montgomery, Ala., city official — Police Commissioner L. B. Sullivan — in a suit against the New York Times and four Negro clergymen. The Times ran an advertisement March 29, 1960, criticizing handling of racial demonstrations in the city. It contained information which, it was later found, included misstatements.

Sullivan won the award in the circuit court of Montgomery County with the contention that several paragraphs in the advertisement would be taken as a reflection on him although the advertisement did not criticize anyone by name.

Strikes at Center

Brennan had this to say on this point:

"Raising as it does the possibility that a good-faith critic of government will be penalized for his criticism, the proposition relied on by the Alabama courts strikes at the very center of the constitutionally protected area of free expression."

"We hold that such a proposition may not be constitutionally utilized to establish an otherwise impersonal attack on government operations was a libel of an official responsible for those operations."

"Since it was relied on exclusively here, and there was no other evidence to connect the statements with respondent (Sullivan), the evidence was constitutionally insufficient to support a finding that the statements referred to respondent."

Way Open

The high court sent the case back to the Alabama courts and left the way open for Sullivan to sue again in line with Monday's decision.

In New York, Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of the Times, said times officials had not yet seen the decision "but we are, of course, delighted." He added:

"The most important issue in the case involve freedom of the press and naturally this is of fundamental importance for all newspapers and other news media."

In Montgomery, Sullivan had no immediate comment.

There isn't a parent in the land with a guarantee that his or her children will grow into responsible adults, but most children will. The majority of young people today are serious minded, intelligent and fully aware of their growing responsibility. But as usual, there are exceptions to the rule and these exceptions are a problem for society as a whole as well as the families in which they occur.

A number of things have taken place recently to indicate that the adult attitude in regard to youthful responsibility and principle sometimes leaves a lot to be desired. In New York City, the school system was disrupted lately with a series of attacks by students against teachers, some of the latter suffering severe physical beatings and others threatened with their lives. The system's superintendent stated that "we will not tolerate any student who assaults a teacher in our schools."

This is precisely what the superintendent should say and it is hoped that his actions are as strong as his words. But from the president of the United Parents Association came a warning against too hasty action to curb violence at the expense of students' rights. "Neither policemen in schools nor suspending children to the streets is an acceptable solution," said the president.

From Indianapolis came the report of a convention of university students from various parts of the country. According to the reports, the convention had developed into a regular "orgy" in the hotel where the young people were staying. Heavy drinking and disorderly conduct brought a host of arrests.

One parent, bailing his tearful daughter out of jail the following day, said he was alarmed when police called him in the early hours. "I thought she had been in an accident," he said. "Thank God, it's only this." Perhaps this father was just overjoyed that his daughter was still alive and was attempting to convey this thought. But if he has the idea that the "orgy" that was a part of the so-called fraternity convention was just a lark and of no importance, then he is way out in left field. The New York mother who is concerned about the students' rights may find something to be said in her behalf, too, but it is a little hard at the moment to see what it might be. Lincoln is not without some of the same thing. The past few weeks have seen a lively local discussion over police action in connection with an officer of the law being referred to by a young person as "fuzz." The details of the incident are pretty hard to tell from all the accounts that have been given but the adult in whose care the youngster was has publicly objected to police action taken at the scene. Here again, the basis for adult objection to the exercise of authority against an objectionable youthful act is pretty questionable. Is a child expected to be completely free to show disrespect toward the civil authority of the community?

In our opinion, the term "fuzz" is a derogatory one and was used in this sense in that case. The adult involved in this incident should have been more concerned with disrespect toward the officer than with the "legal rights" of the youth. If he didn't consider there had been any disrespect, he has a much different opinion of things than we do.

In all of these cases, there is an indifference shown the standard patterns of acceptable social behavior. Certainly, the young person who grows up to believe that whatever he can get away with is what he should do is going to have a world of trouble. And the young person who grows up with the opinion that minor violations of the law are unimportant is in downright serious danger.

In general, there are no laws to enforce politeness, consideration, discretion, etc. You can be quite a louse in this tolerant world of ours and still stay out of the penitentiary. You can be ugly and disagreeable and you can operate, if you want, on the fringe of the law and beyond the fringe of acceptable social standards but it is a mighty risky business to do so. It is but a very small step from there into actions that can ruin a person's life and leave him a complete failure in society.

The young person who is more imbued with his rights than with his responsibilities will enter the world under a distinct handicap. No one favors a police state but if we use nothing but kid gloves with children, we are likely to be slapped in the face with the gloves and find ourselves with no recourse.

Nik Brushes Capitalism

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev had better watch himself or he might end up eating his words. The words he could eat are those he has uttered in years of denunciation of capitalism and the many evils he claims are a part of it.

At the moment, Khrushchev is not calling it capitalism but he is, for a communist, dangerously close to it. Pushing him nearer and nearer the edge is agriculture, the one industry that the Reds have been unable to conquer with their collectives and their government control.

Now, the Russian premier has had to come out in favor of individual capital incentives, in favor of material rewards in accordance with the ability of the farmer. This is a far cry from the theory of rewards based on need and absolute equality of wealth among all citizens.

Farmers of Russia will be shifted now to a system whereby they can grow and produce what they want in whatever manner they see fit. The Kremlin hopes that this new freedom will bring out the best in farmers in terms of diligence on the job and ingenuity in meeting the challenges of agriculture.

If the change in approach works for Russia in the field of agriculture, the communists will find it difficult to limit the spread of this theory of capitalism. Once a society has a taste of individual freedom, once it has been permitted to truly savor the fruits of its labors, then it is all the more difficult to again regiment that society. Russia is finding that for every exertion of effort, there has to be incentive.

Seaway Doing Better

The early years of the Saint Lawrence Seaway failed to produce a shipping bonanza.

Great Lakes ports were satisfactory enough for lake shipping, but fell considerably short of meeting international demands. Besides that middle western life failed to produce maritime experts. So it has been a case of live and learn.

The Seaway has been in operation five years and is correcting many of its faults. Shipping tonnage is now increasing. Last year it moved six million more tons than in 1962 and reached a year's total of 31 million tons. The coming decade should see the Seaway mature as a transportation facility.

Tonnage is one way to measure its relative success. Another more reliable way is to measure competitive hostility.

Up to now East Coast ports showed a live and let live attitude. But now positions are growing sharper. For instance, a Maryland congressman, representing the Baltimore area, is trying to drum up interest in raising Seaway shipping rates. Probably the port of Baltimore is feeling the pinch. It transpires a great deal of freight to the Middle West.

The congressman has lately shown concern for the Seaway's short revenue and would have all believe that rate raises ought to precede bigger volume. It doesn't usually work that way. One suspects that the solon is really thinking that a rate raise would make the East Coast ports look a little better to the ocean shipper.

TVA Controversy

The Tennessee Valley Authority has stirred up a congressional storm.

It is planning to acquire a substantial amount of little used land for conversion into a combined recreation area and a learning ground for conservation practices. The land lies between two of TVA's reservoirs.

The proposal was perhaps untimely. There has been rising criticism of Rural Electrification Associations borrowing REA funds for the purpose of building recreation resorts and other things not directly related to supplying electric power to rural customers.

A question may be raised about the diversification of REA activities. In the act of creation the function of the REA's was closely defined. While they possess some liberty in activities designed to promote land growth, the privilege is sharply restricted.

The Tennessee Valley Authority was created for a much broader purpose. It was to develop the natural resources of the region gainfully, in part to provide financing for the redevelopment of a socially and economically distressed area. It is as much a force in fighting poverty as a means of producing commercial electricity. In the 30 years of its existence it has made a significant record in flood control, soil conservation, education and health. It has attracted industry to the area and noticeably raised the standard of living of the residents.

If the TVA's proposed park is an impracticable idea then there are grounds for restraining it. But the general doctrine of such agencies functioning in behalf of resources development and general economic improvement actually makes sense, especially at this time when the nation is making stalwart efforts toward full employment and against substandard living.

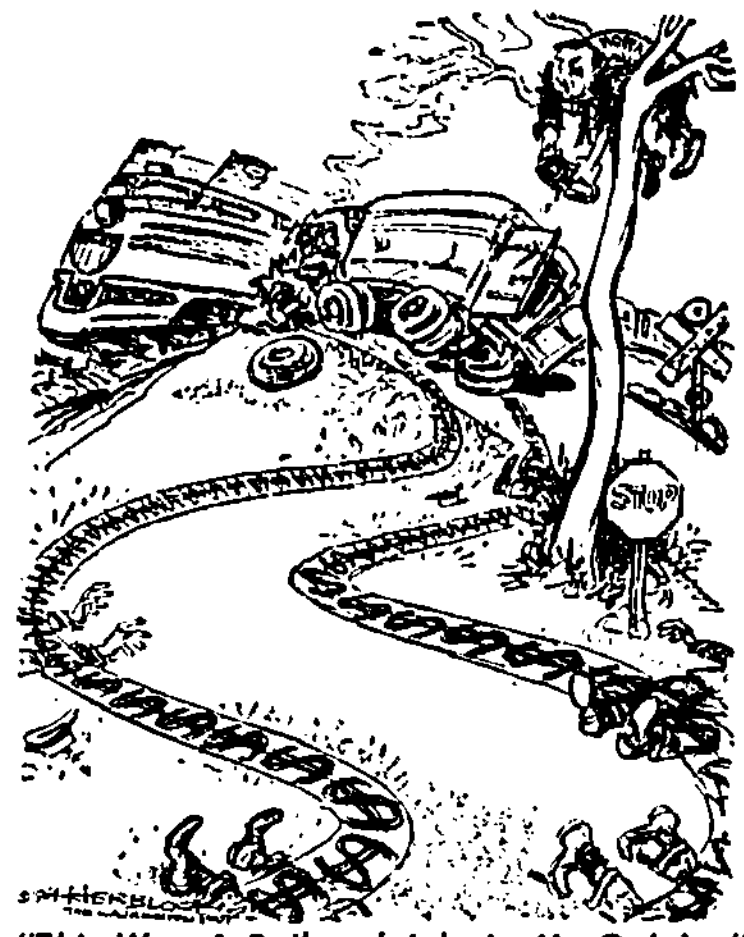

Some Cutting OK

Price fixing conspiracies keep the Department of Justice humping. It seems as though someone is always doing it and every now and then he gets caught.

One of the latest instances brought punishment to a major group of swimming suit manufacturers. The government is charging that they bring pressure to bear on the retailers of women's bathing suits to prevent them from reducing prices during the selling season.

This has caused the Des Moines Register to comment thus:

"What surprises us is that swim suit manufacturers object to the practice. Cutting a little here and there has been the mainstay of the swim suit business. 'There isn't much of anything left to cut but the price nowadays.'"

Secret Operator Is LBJ's Barber

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson is overseas. In his absence his column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — Handsome, hustling Sargent Shriver, who is eager to plunge ahead with the President's anti-poverty drive, keeps treading on someone's sensibilities every time he tries to get organized.

Shriver would like to build a crackpot outfit, like his Peace Corps, to spearhead the fight against poverty. He has even suggested to aides that it might be called the Prosperity Corps.

But every function he wants to take over is already performed by some other government agency.

Anthony Celebrezze, secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, threatened to resign before he would surrender jurisdiction over any of his anti-poverty programs.

And when Shriver tried to take the manpower retraining program away from the Labor department, Secretary Willard Wirtz screamed for a showdown with President Johnson.

The President grudgingly stopped the raids on the other government departments, thus leaving Shriver as anti-poverty czar without portfolio.

An elderly, slightly stooped

Negro, clutching a small black bag, shuffled up to the White House gate the other day on a secret mission. With a nod of recognition, the guards waved him through.

He was ushered quickly into the President's private office where he spread a sheet on the floor, placed a straight-back chair in its center, and prepared to trim President Johnson's hair.

For some unaccountable reason, the White House keeps the barber's visits strictly hush-hush. Press Secretary Pierre Salinger's office refused even to identify him.

"The President gets his hair cut when and where he pleases," was all a spokesman would say.

This column can reveal, however, that President Johnson usually sends for the Senate's No. 1 barber, David Higley, who also used to clip President Kennedy's hair. He became their favorite barber when they served in the Senate.

LBJ likes his hair slicked down, cut close on the side, and his neck shaved. He combs his hair back and upward in a sweeping motion to the crown of his head.

When he has the time, the President goes in for the full tontorial treatment. He is particularly fond of head massages.

Poor Are Helped By New Court Bill

WASHINGTON — Equal Justice Under Law. Those are the brave words carved in foot-high letters on the great marble pediment of the Supreme Court building.

But a searching look in recent years has made it all too clear that there is one kind of justice for the rich and the powerful and another for the poor. Shocked by the glaring inequities built into the American legal system, the late President Kennedy and his brother, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, set out two years ago to find some corrective.

They launched what was, in effect, a quiet war against one of the cruelest forms that poverty takes. It served to shed light on a condition long ignored. Senate and House have now passed a public defender bill providing legal help in the federal courts for those unable to pay for it. While the House version falls short of being adequate, the hope is for a compromise that will at least be a start.

The poor man cannot afford bail. His court-appointed lawyer, if he has one, usually serves without pay and he begins the defense only at the start of the trial. None of the resources available to the affluent defendant — the search for evidence and witnesses, the taking of depositions, the cost of a transcript of the trial looking to an appeal — is within reach of the poor man.

In pointing out these inequities, as shown in unchallengeable statistics, Attorney General Kennedy quoted the famous line of Anatole France: "The law in all its majestic equality forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under the bridges of Paris."

A year ago the Supreme Court handed down a decision in Gideon vs. Wainwright holding that the poor man's right to legal counsel applied to every court in the land. The drama of the origin of this case shows that one obscure individual can by chance find a crack in the elaborate legal structure to plead his case.

Clarence Earl Gideon was an unknown Florida convict. He sat down in his prison cell to write a letter to the Supreme Court protesting his innocence. While the court must get hundreds of letters, that one got attention. His case was looked into and he was retried with a competent defense counsel. Found not guilty, he was released from prison after two years of punishment for a crime he had not committed. Thus, as Attorney General Kennedy noted, the whole course of American legal history was changed.

Concern over whether "Equal Justice Under Law" means just that today was the theme of Justice Arthur Goldberg's James Madison lecture at New York University's School of Law. He pointed out that the defendant without means is penalized in a variety of ways not only following his arrest and at his trial but when he is convicted. The "choice" of paying a $100 fine or spending 30 days in jail, Goldberg observed, is really no choice at all to the person who cannot raise $100. The resulting imprisonment, he added, is no more or less than imprisonment for being poor.

WORDS THAT GUIDE ME

Whoever forces thee to go for one mile, go with him two.

Matthew 5:41 Contraband Version

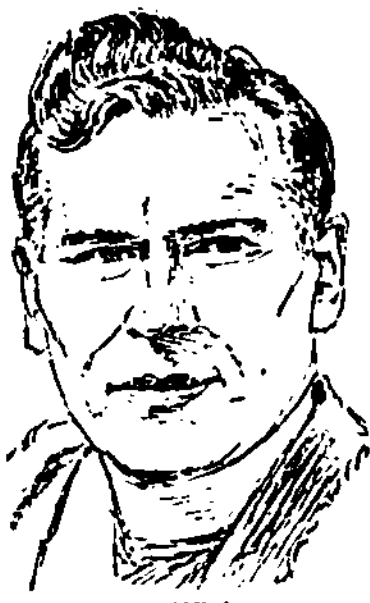

By FATHER JOHN O'BRIEN
Research Professor of Theology, University of Notre Dame

For more than 50 years these words of Our Lord have echoed and re-echoed in my memory. At first they startled me, then gripped me with their haunting challenge and command. They go to the heart of the Gospel and illustrate the principle central in Christ's ethical teaching: "Overcome evil with good."

This counsel of perfection has had hard sledding over the centuries because it runs against the grain of human nature, which demands an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. Yet it constitutes the test of Christ's discipleship: the willingness to return good for evil and love for hatred. It mirrors an unshakable faith in the invincible power of goodness, unselfishness, self-sacrifice, magnanimity, and a generosity that seeks no repayment here below.

At first glance this precept, like its companions—turning the other cheek and loving your enemies—appears utterly impractical. Paradoxical as it may seem, however, its fulfillment pays rich dividends in peace of mind and happiness, while the person who meets insult or injury with revenge finds the evil multiplied a hundredfold. It is a segment of that larger paradox with which Christ also startled his hearers: "He who loses his life for my sake, will find it."

The effort to translate Christ's command into daily conduct, to do more than is required by strict justice, to return good for evil, and to walk the second mile in surplus service transforms one's whole life. This is illustrated in the life of Booker T. Washington, the founder of Tuskegee Institute.

Fr. O'Brien

Daily discrimination, social ostracism, and scowling prejudice tempted him fiercely to strike back. But he rose above the instincts of his fallen nature and said: "No man, either white or black, from North or South, shall drag me down so low as to make me hate him." When he died in 1915, Andrew Carnegie thus voiced the sentiment of millions: "History will tell us of two Washingtons, one white, one black, both fathers of their people."

The effort to put the counsel of Jesus into daily practice transformed Toyohiko Kagawa into one of the noblest ethical leaders of Japan. When confronted by a bully who demanded his few coins to buy liquor, Kagawa refused. Whereupon the ruffian rained blow after blow upon his face, knocking out several of his teeth and causing blood to stream from his lips.

But Kagawa did not strike back. His vision of Jesus, buffeted, spat upon and saying, "If someone strike thee on the right cheek, turn to him the other also," restrained him. Terror-stricken, the brute fled in dismay. There is something deep in the heart of man that crumples at the sight of a person who is innocent, defenseless, and unafraid bears the blows heaped upon him without striking back. Physical force falls on its knees in awe when confronted with the moral might of a love that walks the second mile in surplus service. Each day I pray, "God, give me the grace to walk that second mile."

John A. O'Brien, research professor of theology at the University of Notre Dame, received his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois where he established the Newman Foundation, consisting of residence halls, chapel, and social center for Roman Catholic students, the largest in the United States.

For some 20 years, he conducted accredited courses in the philosophy of religion for University of Illinois students of all faiths. While serving as Director of the Newman Foundation, he received a gold Knights of Columbus pin from the Acacia Fraternity (an organization composed exclusively of Protestants) in appreciation of his influence for friendship and goodwill among students of all faiths on the campus.

Dr. O'Brien has lectured at many of the leading universities in this country and in England. He is the author of some 15 books in the fields of philosophy, religion, and education. Among the best known of his works is Truths Men Live By, which has been acclaimed as a classic by leaders of all faiths.

Liquor Decision

Lincoln, Neb.
The City Council is to be commended for deferring a decision on the beer and liquor policy of containment, and referring it back to the special committee for further study.

The questions of safety and added cost of police protection are vital issues and the question of referendum is basic in our democracy.

But far more important is exploding the delusions of wishful thinking with an understanding of the truth and right on the subject. Now that the recent court decision has made the bottle club law unconstitutional, this calls for further study. The question, it seems to me, is whether this class legislation should not be eliminated altogether.

REV. W. L. HADSELL

The Answers

Lincoln, Neb.
I have some questions about the city legal department.

Who is the new city attorney and how much is he being paid? Where did he go to law school and what legal experience has he had? Has this attorney been admitted to practice in Nebraska? Before he is admitted, is it illegal for him to act as deputy city attorney in municipal court? What is the penalty if he acts as an attorney before he is admitted to practice in Nebraska? If the municipal judge permits this man to practice law in that court before he is admitted, has the judge violated any law? How long must a person actually live in Nebraska before he can be admitted to practice? Was any graduate of the University of Nebraska College of Law available for appointment to this position?

WONDERING

Editor's Note: The newest member of the city's legal staff is Assistant City Attorney Jack Lindner, a native of Waterloo, Iowa, whose salary is $7,200 a year. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee Law School, practiced law at Knoxville, Tennessee, and served one year there as night judge in sessions court.

Mr. Lindner has applied but not yet been admitted for practice in Nebraska but is practicing under established reciprocity practices and with approval of the Nebraska bar until his admission.

tance here can be processed. Thus, he is considered to be violating no law. He cannot sign complaints but can prosecute them in court for the city. Admission to practice in the state has no residency requirement.

Only one other attorney answered published ads for this position and he was not a University of Nebraska graduate.

Wasted Acres

Wilber, Neb.
I have always wondered why the ditches on each side of new roads must be so wide. Now I know—so there will be plenty of room for all the junk that is thrown there. As I understand it, it is against the law to drink in cars or throw anything from a car. Is it so hard to stop this, with all the patrolmen? If some of the violators would get a warning in the form of a $25 fine, perhaps the empty beer bottles and cans could be controlled.

Not so long ago, I got back from Europe. I observed the roads over there as we drove along. The roads there are very old and there are big old trees on each side—linden trees, chestnuts, maple trees—some of them 300 years old, and no more than 30 feet between the trees. Farmers sow grain almost up to the paving. They keep neighboring land clean and clear of all rubbish, and do it without any public expense. They can do it easily because the land is smooth from farm land to the roads. Over there they try to cultivate every foot of land. What a difference here! We have at least 30 feet of dirty ditches on both sides of our roads.

All of us would like to see the state of Nebraska nice and clean. And we should remember that the first thing the tourist sees is the land adjoining the roads.

As I said, I have just returned from Europe. The "autobahn" runs from Vienna, Salzburg, Munich, Frankfurt, Hamburg and to Berlin for hundreds of kilometers with no red lights, no stops. There are two lines on each side of the division strips, each line 12 feet, so there is 24 feet of paving right and left. The whole autobahn is only 60 feet wide and there are no ungainly ditches by the road. In all of Europe there are always trees along the roads. In Czechoslovakia, mostly there are fruit trees. As we traveled to the main city of Bohemia, Prague, there were two rows of cherry trees in full bloom. That sight was not from this world, but from a fairy tale. If we had something like that in Nebraska, we wouldn't have to advertise. The tourists would be here by the thousands.

One mile with 30 or 40 feet on each side of the road in unnecessary ditches makes for each running mile about eight or nine acres. With thousands of miles of roadway in the country, how many hundreds of thousands of acres of fertile land are wasted? Over here we waste as much good land as such countries as Norway, Finland or Switzerland have under the plow. Our wasted acres could produce as much grain as those countries raise.

Mexico Especially Attractive To Mature Travelers

By ROBERT PETERSON
The plane on which I jetted into Mexico had 110 passengers. As I observed my fellow travelers, including Miss Lana Turner, it occurred to me that everyone of us was past 40 years of age.
I found myself wondering why there were no "young" people on board, and came to the conclusion that it takes a certain maturity to appreciate Mexico. It is only when folks have seen most of the states, have begun to lose interest in strenuous, status-seeking stateside routines, and find themselves yearning for a different, more contemplative way of life that they are drawn south of the border.
First, there's the climate. Most of the major cities are several thousand feet above sea level. As a consequence, the air is light and dry. The sun shines nearly every day and temperatures are mild—rarely rise above 85 degrees or drop below 50.

Second, there's the low cost of living. In Mexico City, Cuernavaca, and Acapulco prices are only slightly less than in the U.S. But virtually everywhere else in Mexico living costs run considerably lower. Take the popular Guadalajara-Lake Chapala area which is a four-hour drive from Mexico City. Some 10,000 Americans live in that sun-kissed highland where roomy, modern homes rent for $50 to $70 monthly and full course dinners at the best restaurants cost $1.60.
Third, there's the scenic beauty. Although much of Mexico is gray, rocky, and barren, there are oases of trees, shrubs and brilliant tropical flowers wherever nature has been given a little water, cultivation and human encouragement. And nearly everywhere you go there are the great purple mountain ranges which criss-cross the nation and emanate a timeless majesty.

One of the great highways of the world is the broad ribbon of concrete that runs from Mexico City through Cuernavaca and Taxco to Acapulco. It offers one lovely mountain panorama after the other—all totally unspoiled and a delight to the eye.
Fourth, there are many diversions. Most Americans would grow bored after an hour watching the natives in New York, Chicago, or

Los Angeles. But Mexico is so foreign and different that there's endless pleasure just observing the people and their customs. And when this delight ultimately palls one can visit museums and art galleries, observe craftsmen at work, sample native foods, study Spanish and stroll for hours in the open markets.
Fifth, there are the Mexicans themselves. They were of little interest to me on previous visits. But maturity has brought a special awareness of their modesty, courtesy, and essential friendliness. But aren't the natives very poor? Yes, at least two-thirds of those you see on the streets appear to be quite poor by our standards.
But as one writer so deftly expressed it, "It's a delight to see the poor in a humble, honest way who do not know they are poor and who are comfortable and at home in their environment."

If you would like a booklet "Refining to Mexico" write to this column c/o The Lincoln Star enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents to cover handling costs.

Collusion In School Land Bids Frequent-Hargleroad

A member of the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds said Monday there have been many instances of collusion in bidding on state school land leases "but we can't put our fingers on them."
William B. Hargleroad Jr. of Omaha said collusion "is the thing which really stands this board on its ear. We throw them out when we can catch them."
Most of the 12-year school land leases in recent years have been uncontested, meaning the lessee pays only one year's cash rental in advance. When competing bids are received, bonuses come into play, the bid going to the bidder with the highest bonus offer.
Hargleroad's comments were made as officers of the Nebraska Soil and Water conservation districts met with the board to discuss conservation practices and policies.

Merion England of North Platte, president of the conservation district organization, said some lessees were unhappy that they are not fully compensated for permanent improvements made on state land at the termination of their leases.
The law specifies that payment for improvements is a matter between the new and old tenants and does not involve the state board.

Family Tradition Carried On Suburbia Has Eye On Spring

It has been said that woman's place is in the home and maybe this is true — to an extent. However, there is no limit to the interesting activities and hobbies which many women find valuable and rewarding.

For Mrs. W. Richard Baker, an interest in rodeos has led her to become a director on the Miss Rodeo America Pageant Committee which will be held this coming November at the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev.

Mrs. Baker's hobby began many years ago when her grandfather, the late Andrew Snyder, was one of the original members of the ground committee for the Burwell Rodeo. From there, her father, Paul Banks of Burwell, directed the rodeo for 21 years, and each year traveled to Denver, Colo., for the National Convention, accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Mr. Banks is now serving his 10th year as a director for the International Rodeo Management Assn. He also serves on the National Finals Rodeo Board and represents all rodeo committees in the United States and Canada.

Through her many trips to the conventions in Denver and her past work with the Miss Rodeo of Nebraska contest in Burwell, Mrs. Baker's interest has grown, as has her experience.

In planning with the committee for the Miss Rodeo America pageant, Mrs. Baker states that there are hopes of the pageant being televised with a talent division included. Participants in the contest are generally from every state and are judged according to their horsemanship, personality, personogenic qualities and appearance.

Mrs. Baker, a devoted wife and mother, is also a graduate of the University of Nebraska and a member of Alpha Xi Delta and a 1957 Countess of Aksarben. She also manages to squeeze in enough time in her busy schedule to teach an English class at Lincoln Air Force Base.

We asked Mrs. Baker if her son Paul would make a career of the rodeo. She replied, "I really couldn't say at this time, you see he is only three years old."

FIENE HEIGHTS

It's just about time to oil roller skates, dry out the skip ropes, and brush up on the rules of hopscotch — if you are three-to-eleven years old.

Otherwise, and we speak mostly to homemakers, it's just about time to begin plans for spring housecleaning. There's a lot more to this task than assembling a pile of mops, brooms, pails, and soap. You also have to figure various methods to keep the children out of the way, and win over your husband's support by getting him to pledge three Saturday afternoons when he'll assist. However, there is plenty of time to plot maneuvers, and right now, it seems suburban residents have many other activities planned, and they're all fun.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Hewitt had as their guests Thursday and Friday their nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Osman, Jr. of Kenesaw.

After the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Osman, Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt were host and hostess to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs.

Ed Shurigar and their daughters, Cindy, Janice, Barbara, Patty, and Mollye B., also of Kenesaw.

The Shurigar family visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt during the weekend, returning to Kenesaw Sunday evening.

KESSLER HEIGHTS

Traveling to Grand Island Saturday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Connell and their sons, Jim and Steven, who were the guests of Mrs. Connell's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Witherill and their children, Jolea, Mary Irene, David, and Todd. Mr. and Mrs. Connell and family returned to Lincoln Saturday evening.

PRAIRIE VALLEY

Snow, ice, and cloudy skies were no threat to Mr. and Mrs. H. Claire Helmsdoefer for a recent two weeks.

They were vacationing in Phoenix, Ariz., where they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Borgman of San Francisco, Calif., for a mid-winter vacation.

We understand the men golfed, while the feminine vacationers bowed to occupy part of the informal hours.

Moving into a new neighborhood is more than a transitional change in locality. It involves making new friends, learning new ways to the grocery store, and in some cases, becoming accustomed to a new school for the children.

This morning, we have news of two recent additions to Prairie Valley. The first is that of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cagle and their daughter, Karen, who are still getting settled in their new home.

The Cagle family moved to Lincoln from Scottsbluff two weeks ago, and now reside at 4507 East Eden.

The second addition is that of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mitchell and their daughters, Deborah and Cheryl, who moved from their home on Kessler Boulevard to 4611 Antelope Creek Rd. about a week ago.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

Nobody rings a bell to tell you when the crucial point in the play of a hand has been reached. You have to recognize such situations when they arise, because, if you don't, a golden opportunity can pass you by and an irate partner may indelicately point an accusing finger at you.

For example, take this hand where West is defending against four spades. He cashes three top clubs. East following once and then discarding a low heart and a low diamond on the next two clubs.

What should West play now? There is only one correct play for him to make—another club. This enables East to ruff with the jack, forcing South to lose a trump trick and go down one. Not many players would have the presence of mind to play another club, but it is obviously the killing line of defense.

What should induce West to play the fourth round of clubs? It runs counter to instinct, no doubt, since it has been drummed into all of us that it is bad defensive play to provide declarer with a ruff and discard.

But this general rule, though usually a good one to follow, is bound to have its exceptions, just as any other general rule has. A player is supposed to govern the rule and not let the rule govern him. If following a rule, in a particular case, seems harmful, the rule should be abandoned in that case.

West should realize, at trick four, that there is no real hope of defeating the contract unless a trump trick can be won. He has a certainty of making a trump trick for his side if his partner has the jack, queen or king of spades.

He therefore leads the ten of clubs and hopes that East will produce one of these cards. If it turns out that East has none of them, West can at least claim A for effort.

Dear Abby

Your Conduct Takes The Cake

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday was my 46th birthday. My husband gave me a new carpet for the living room and a sofa cover. My son gave me some charms for my bracelet. My husband offered to take me out for dinner, but I refused. I finally opened a few cans, called it dinner and went straight to bed. The big omission was a simple little birthday cake! I have never missed buying my husband and son one on their birthdays. Why are men so thoughtless?

SORE
DEAR SORE: Thoughtless? Gifts and an offer of dinner out? Perhaps had you gone out to dinner there would have been a birthday cake awaiting you. What is eating you, Madame? Your complaint takes the cake!

DEAR ABBY: What does one do about parents who do not instruct their children in the proper use of the telephone? I have one family in mind, but I know others, who let their children answer the telephone, "WHO IS THIS?" This irks me terribly. They don't even give you a chance to identify yourself. Once I was almost tempted to say, "It's none of your business. Go get your mother!"

I GIVE UP
DEAR "I": Inadequate parents rarely appreciate criticism of their children's manners. Either risk trying to educate your friends, or learn to tolerate their children's rudeness.

Care For Your Hair

Josephine Lowman

Most women devote more thought and time—and conversation—to the appearance of their hair than to almost any other aspect of beauty. When they get together, a "summit" conference often follows. Even reducing sometimes takes second place in conversation to hair problems and fashions.

This is understandable since beautiful hair has long been one of woman's most prized possessions and one which is admired by the opposite sex. This being true, it is strange that so many women fail to give their top-knot proper care for its greatest health and sheen.

There is still a lot of confusion as to how often a shampoo is in order. The answer is simple—whenever the hair shows that it needs washing. Medical authorities and beauticians are in agreement on this point. If your hair is excessively oily, a shampoo every day is not too much, although this is seldom necessary.

Become Lanky
Locks become lanky when they are weighted down with an oily film. This attracts and holds the dust and dirt in the air. Washing with a warm lather removes the oily dirt and restores the hair's spring and luster to the hair.

Normal to dry hair responds well to a once-a-week shampoo schedule. Daily brushing helps keep the hair free from dust between shampoos, stimulates circulation and adds a healthy shine to the natural color of the tresses. If your hair is extremely dry perhaps a shampoo every 10 or 12 days will be best.

Officials Marvel At Low Toll

Chicago (P)—Officials marveled at the loss of only one life Monday when a passenger plane with 30 aboard crashed into a house in which six persons were asleep.

The chartered two-engine DC3 smashed down through murky overcast Sunday night in Hoffman Estates, a new district of bungalow houses three miles northwest of O'Hare field.

Copilot Daniel Jordan, 22, of

Grade Principals Will Hear NU's Dr. Meierhenry

Dr. Wesley Meierhenry, assistant dean of the Teachers College of the University of Nebraska, will address the general session of the annual meeting of the Department of Elementary School Principals of the Nebraska State Education Association.

The meeting at the Nebraska Center will begin March 20 and continue through March 21 with general and special sessions, round table discussions and a banquet.

Keynote speakers will be Mrs. Dorcas Cavett, assistant professor of education, and Dr. Oswald Kopp, chairman of the Department of Elementary Education, both from the University of Nebraska.

Gary, Ind., was killed, impaled on a 2-by-4 timber of the house.

Virgil Pronovost, 40, of Robinson, Ill., the pilot, suffered head cuts and chest injuries, and one of the 28 passengers, Fred Temby, 34, of Aurora, Ill., cuts and possible internal injury. Neither was critically hurt, a hospital spokesman said.

Back From Skiing
The plane, returning from a ski outing at Boyne Mountain, Mich., had been cleared for landing after Pronovost radioed that he had lost 1,000 feet of altitude and was flying at 1,500 feet. The airport tower told him to regain some altitude.

Pronovost, who was trapped in the plane cab with Jordan's body, told Fire Chief Carl Selke of Hoffman Estates, as firemen worked to free him: "There was too much turbulence. We tried to straighten it out."

The plane dropped under the low overcast only moments before a wing struck a telephone pole and it smashed into the one-story section of the house of Victor Golubski, 50, shattering that portion and ramming it off its foundations.

In Bedrooms
Golubski, his wife, their three children and an aunt, 76, were in the upper floor of the two-level section in bedrooms.

The passenger cabin exit door was opened quickly, and some passengers climbed through window port emergency exits rather than wait for clearing of the aisle. The door between passenger and cab compartments was jammed.

The Golubskis were trapped in the upper floor section of their house, despite attempts of neighbors to free them. They were taken out by firemen who pulled out a steel window frame.

Official Suggests Power Merger Include City

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The vice president of Norris Public Power District Monday suggested that Lincoln be included in a merger of southeast Nebraska electric utilities into a single integrated public power district.

The district could be patterned after the Omaha Public Power District, Charles Hroch of Wilber said.

Hroch offered his proposal to the Legislative Council's power study committee.

Directors of other rural power districts and the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District appeared before the committee. Directors of Omaha Public Power District will meet with the legislators Tuesday.

Single Agency

Hroch said Norris favors the establishment of a single integrated (generation, transmission and retail distribution) power agency in several areas throughout the state.

Norris opposes any statewide merger because it would consolidate "too much economic and political power" in a single agency, Hroch said.

Hroch also suggested that municipal utilities should withdraw to the city limits and boundary zones of municipalities.

Raymond Messner of Central City said the Nebraska Electric Generation and Transmission Cooperative, Inc., favors the establishment of a single generation and transmission agency in the eastern two-thirds of the state.

Messner is vice president of the 23-member rural cooperative.

Broadened Representation

Member rurals also favor broadening of representation on the boards of the Nebraska Public Power System partners to cover the entire NPIS service area, he said.

Loup River Public Power District elects its directors from one county; Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District elects from four counties. NPIS operates in 70 Nebraska counties.

Messner said some municipal utility customers are now subjected to "unwilling taxation" in that surplus electric revenue is often directed to the construction of swimming pools and other municipal activities.

Eastern Nebraska Public power District favors either the establishment of a single generation and transmission agency in eastern Nebraska or the creation of several integrated power districts. Clarence Hilgenfeld of Dawson told the committee.

'Last Resort'

Eastern favors voluntary agreements, with further legislation "only as a last resort," he said.

Central President Claude B. Miller of Holdrege said his district is "a bystander" in the state's power problems and "it hates to suggest what others should do about their problems."

Miller said he opposes any proposed merger of Central and Platte, but has "no objection" to spreading the representation on the Loup and Platte boards.

Sen F. O. Gottschalk of Columbus told the lawmakers he favors taking away the Nebraska Power Review Board's advisory authority in rate disputes.

Sen. Arnold Ruhnke of Plymouth opposed the suggestion, arguing that it acts as "a deterrent" to court litigation.

Retirement Suit Before High Court

The lawsuit testing the constitutionality of the state employees retirement system was appealed to the Nebraska Supreme Court Monday and both parties involved asked the court to place the case on its May docket.

Gordon Gossman, an employee of the State Department of Aeronautics, appealed the Lancaster District Court ruling upholding the validity of the law.

He had filed his suit against the State Employees Retirement Board, which was set up to administer the program.

In an accompanying petition, the Supreme Court was asked to schedule oral arguments in the case for the week of May 4, earlier than it would normally be heard.

State Insurance Director Frank Barrett, chairman of the retirement board, said he would recommend to the board that it not sign any contract to initiate the program until the Supreme Court rules on the validity of the law.

The board has selected Bankers Life Nebraska as carrier for the retirement program but no agreement has been concluded yet. Barrett said he "is sure" the board will wait until the decision is handed down.

Col. Kerner, Deputy Base Chief, Is Dead

1. Col. Wayne B. Kerner, Lincoln Air Force Base deputy commander for security and law enforcement, died Monday of a stroke.

A native of Spring Grove, Ill., he resided at 5501 Lindsey Terr.

Col. Kerner came to Lincoln in 1958 as aircraft commander of the 345th Bomb Squadron, 98th Bombardment Wing.

In January 1959 he moved to the 343rd Bomb Squadron as operations officer and remained there until February 1960, when he was assigned to the 98th Headquarters Squadron.

He assumed the duties of squadron commander of the 818th Combat Defense Squadron in July 1961, becoming base deputy commander in July 1962.

Survivors include his widow, Astrid; a daughter, Catherine, and his mother, Mrs. Margaret R. Dwyer of Spring Grove.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the LAFB chapel.

Burial will be in the Fort Leavenworth, Kan., National Cemetery.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplaine

Squaw Valley in the high Sierra is under a blanket of snow. (All good little valleys should be under their blankets at this time.)

The squaws are in good order. You can tell a good deal about a squaw's order if she is in ski stretch pants.

The lodges are full of skiers and the skiers are full of hot buttered rum. There are some interesting fractures. The snow has been pronounced excellent for the downhill swoopers.

And Squaw Valley is a success.

Squaw Valley became a success when Alex Cushing persuaded the Olympics committee to put the 1960 Winter Olympics there.

He did it single-handed. Acting out the big money greed of a dozen international ski resorts.

It was a Horatio Alger Jr. success story.

Nobody gave Cushing a medal — (They should have).

I don't seem to remember anybody giving him anything but a lot of problems.

Even so, the valley became a whopping success. Full of winter ski cabins, lodges, restaurants, shops, legal problems.

I imagine the heart problem rate is increasing. Stress and strain arrive with the comforts of civilization.

The last time I saw Squaw Valley, I saw it on TV. We covered the snowy Winter Olympics from the top floor of the Mapes Hotel in Reno — 30 miles away.

It was sparkling press coverage. For the downhill sparkles better if you view it in a nice warm room through the bottom of a beer glass.

Walter Ramage, the Reno innkeeper, had converted the sky room of the Mapes into a headquarters for the International Olympics Press Club.

I was a director. One day somebody asked me how to get to the Press Club and I directed them to the elevator. It was the only time I functioned officially.

The Press Club was noted for a curious bar system. Ramage installed a traffic stop-and-go sign in the room.

When the light was red, you paid for your drink.

When it was green, drinks were on the house.

There were no traffic violators—when the red light was on, we all stopped drinking. Though a few of the thirsty jumped the yellow.

From this cozy room (with a splendid view of the snowy Sierra), we covered the downhill or the uphill or the ski jumps or the Russians playing hockey. All on the sparkling TV.

On TV we could see the TV men. Shivering in the windy snows. Reporters feel that they do all the work while TV simply films the interview and takes the credit.

This reversed the situation and gave us immense satisfaction.

In such a rewarding atmosphere, the snows grew whiter in our prose and the downhillers went downhill at a faster clip.

Those were the good old days.

The most persistent patronizers of the Press Club were the Russian journalists.

I got the idea that in Russia no drinks are on the house. And the Russian typewriter jockeys could hardly believe their good luck.

They were in the club when it opened in the morning. And they closed it at night.

When the stop-and-go light flashed green, it was go, man, go for those Russian cats.

For the all-out drinking downhill, they had us whipped from the start.

Thus our writing blossomed with snowy metaphors and our verbs were sharp as ice skates. We praised Squaw Valley and passed the ammunition of success.

And if Squaw Valley prospers today, I think we and the International Olympics Press Club and the stop-and-go signal) did our small part.

Hossack, Officials Discuss Omaha Interstate Work

Three Omaha city officials conferred with State Highway Engineer John Hossack Monday morning on scheduling of Interstate construction in Omaha.

Hossack said the private session was a routine exploratory meeting to work out schedules for construction. He doubted any decisions would be arrived at immediately.

The three Omaha officials were G. B. Sumner, director of public works, City Engineer D. P. DeBord and K. J. Schulte, in charge of plans and programs for the Public Works Department.

Sumner said they want to determine the schedule for completion of Interstate 480 in the city to the Missouri River.

'64 CHEVROLET—THE GREAT HIGHWAY PERFORMER

Chevrolet Impala Convertible

Nothing feels steep in a Chevrolet Impala (including the price!)

A hill is just something to admire the view from when you're driving a '64 Chevrolet. With engines up to a 425-hp V8*, getting from one side to the other wouldn't be much easier if somebody had put a tunnel there.

And if Chevrolet can go over a whole mountain so you hardly feel it, you can imagine how it goes over plain old bumps. Jet-smooth, of course. We put a big coil spring at all four wheels (not to mention 700 or so sound and shock absorbers throughout the body and chassis) to soak them up just as fast as they come.

As you'd expect, Chevrolet turns in its usual fine performance with everything inside that big beautiful Body by Fisher, too. All kinds of stretch-out room and wide thick-cushioned seats that let you get in a full day's driving without fatigue. Yards of deep-twist carpeting and elegant fabric and vinyl upholstery that make you feel good just being there.

With all its looks and luxury, you can see how anyone might get the idea that this great highway performer is a high-priced car. Unless, of course, they happened to look first at its reasonable Chevrolet price.

And your Chevrolet dealer will be happy to show you that, wherever you drive, the price is probably what you'll feel least of all.

*Optional at extra cost.

Baker Got Much Liquor

SALARY KICKBACK ALSO CHARGED

Washington (AP)—Testimony that Bobby Baker was showered with liquor, jewelry, clothes and other Christmas gifts was coupled Monday with a charge that the former Senate aide required one page boy to kick back part of his salary.

The alleged $50-a-month kickback, Senate investigators were told, went to Walter J. (Joe) Stewart, chief telephone page for the Senate Democratic majority. Stewart denied the charge and said the money was for payment of back rent.

Stewart had a desk in Baker's office and kept track of the Christmas presents, among other duties. He also got a ride occasionally in the Lincoln automobile assigned to Baker as secretary to the Democratic majority.

Two Months
Boyd Ritchie, who worked as a Senate page in 1961-62, testified his $50 payments to Stewart lasted only two months. He said they ended abruptly when he followed his lawyer-father's advice and complained directly to Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president.

Johnson not only had the payments stopped, Ritchie said, but also "worked out an arrangement whereby I would live free at Mr. Stewart's home for the next two months" as compensation for the $100 already paid.

Ritchie, an athletic-looking 18-year-old from Wichita Falls, Tex., testified at a Senate Rules Committee hearing into Baker's outside business activities.

Harking back to Christmas of 1961, Ritchie said Baker received "large amounts of liquor"—cases of it—in addition to "foodstuffs, grape fruits and candy," and a black star sapphire ring as big as a penny.

Stewart testified the ring was a gift from Robert F. Thompson of Dallas, Tex., executive vice president of a heavy construction firm owned by the Murchison brothers, Texas financiers.

However, Stewart contended, it was "just a plain department store ring," worth maybe anywhere from $50 to $200. He said as far as he knows Baker still is wearing it.

Military Draft Impending In Malaysia

Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia (UPI)—Malaysia moved toward an immediate military draft Monday to defend itself against the threat of invasion by Indonesia in the Borneo jungles.

In Jakarta, Indonesian President Sukarno held a crisis meeting with his cabinet and ordered a new "revolutionary offensive" to crush Malaysia.

Malaysian Premier Tunku Abdul Rahman, who called for military conscription throughout the new federation met with six cabinet ministers for a general survey of the situation. The draft question and plans to submit the Malaysian crisis to the United Nations are scheduled for consideration by the full cabinet Tuesday.

'Moment Of Truth'
Malaysian Foreign Minister

Guazall Shafie Monday charged Indonesia with "naked aggression" and said the crisis is nearing "the moment of truth."

In recommending the draft, Rahman said Malaysia could conscript 100,000 to 200,000 men in the event of war. Nearly 300,000 Malaysians between the ages of 18 and 21 are registered for service and Rahman said, "I personally feel that they should be called up now."

In Jakarta, Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio called Sukarno's order for the revolutionary offensive a "new high" in the crush Malaysia campaign.

'Must Be Effectuated'

"The president stressed that we have reached a stage in our way of thinking of the revolutionary offensive which must be implemented in our internal and external actions," Subandrio quoted Sukarno as saying.

"We have left the stage of revolutionary defensive where our only aim was to survive," of a cease-fire in Borneo Malaysia Monday charged which went into effect Jan. 24.

Greek King's Body Lies In State

Athens, Greece (AP)—A mournful procession of military guards, Boy and Girl Scouts and police brought the body of King Paul to lie in state Monday in the Greek Orthodox cathedral.

Thousands assembled outside the cathedral broke through police lines at one point and attempted to enter the church before the hour set for public viewing. There was a rush toward the doors but police stopped it.

The king's body will lie in state until Thursday morning, when it will be borne back to the suburban Tatol Palace, where he died Friday, for the funeral.

The funeral will be attended by royalty and dignitaries from many nations, including Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and former President Harry Truman for the United States.

Former King Umberto of Italy and Italian Prince Amedeo of Aosta were first of the royal figures to arrive in Athens.

The procession moved King

Paul's body from the royal palace in central Athens through hushed and crowded streets to the cathedral. Tens of thousands lined the sidewalks. Many wept as the flag-draped coffin passed.

"My King! My King!" Some of the mourners cried out. "Goodbye my king," other said.

After the coffin was placed on a catafalque before the altar, the royal family entered the cathedral to pray with

Prime Minister George Papandreou and the Greek cabinet.

Queen Frederika, Paul's widow, walked at the side of her son, Constantine, who has succeeded his father to the Throne of the Hellenes. Behind them walked Crown Princess Irene, 22, and Princess Sophie, 24.

Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark, Constantine's future Queen, rode behind them in a car.

New York Life statement of condition

The past year has been an excellent one for New York Life and its policy owners. The rate of return on the Company's investments continued to go up and costs of operating the Company were further improved. As a consequence, for the second consecutive year, substantially more funds were available for dividends to policy owners. Early in 1963 the Company introduced a new series of policies which met with a highly favorable reception on the part of the insuring public. Sales of new individual life and health insurance were greater than ever before. Payments to policy owners and beneficiaries reached a record high.

SPORT SIGNALS

By Hal Brown

Sports Editor, The Star

An Opposing View

"In regard to your column of Tuesday, Mar. 3, and Wednesday, Mar. 4, I think if anyone is the coward it is you," Dave Ball of 1300 So. 40th writes.

After that shot between the eyes, Ball goes on, "Your closing statement (Sport Signals, Tuesday, Mar. 3) 'Nebraska has had more than its share of courageous athletes. Then there are the others. Your meaning is clear yet you weren't brave enough to actually say Moore was a coward either.'

"You seem to feel that while all athletes are not obligated to ignore injuries (Claridge, Kliffin) that they are cowards if they don't."

"You also carried the same thing in Wednesday, Mar. 4, column. You, in effect, called Liston a coward and said he should have exposed himself to possible permanent injury by continuing the fight. Liston took his chances going 'only' six rounds and he probably realized that if he could not finish Clay in the 'blind fifth' he might as well quit since he would never get a better chance."

"I feel that an athlete knows best when to quit and can judge when and how badly they are injured. I don't feel that they should be censured, second guessed or called a coward."

Comment—At least the writer had courage enough to sign his name, something many letter writers don't have.

The 'Ida Bell Defense'

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf says his cagers use the "Ida Bell defense." He explains that he used to go with a girl named Ida Bell in Oklahoma, and she switched from man-to-man.

Kansas is the latest among the growing list of colleges, junking its annual alumni-varsity football game to wind up spring practice drills.

"It is becoming increasingly difficult to field an alumni team," explains coach Jack Mitchell, "especially since the pros prefer that their boys do not play, for which you can't blame them."

Could be the pros are remembering the Boyd Dowler incident at Colorado last spring and don't want any of their high-priced gridirers being floored by a co-ed wielding a mop in the girls dormitory hall.

Nebraska's Dave Theisen was a close challenger to Iowa State's Dick Limerick for the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity's "Outstanding Athlete" award in the fifth district.

Limerick edged out Theisen, teammate Dave Hoover, Iowa's Jay Roberts and Missouri's Daryl Krugman for the award, according to chairman Larry Winn Jr.

Two Nebraskans have won the award in the past with Bobby Reynolds getting the honor in 1950 and Jim Iluge taking home the trophy in 1901.

Buffs Humble Husker Five

Boulder, Colo. (AP)—A typically fine performance by Jim Davis helped Colorado to an 89-73 basketball victory over Nebraska and to second place in the Big Eight Conference Monday night.

Davis, ending his college playing career, led the scorers with 23 points and pulled down 17 rebounds, also tops for the game. Over his college playing days, he grabbed 863 rebounds for a Colorado University record.

After taking a 10-8 lead with 3:30 gone in the game, Colorado led the rest of the way and was never threatened. The halftime score was 49-32.

During the second half, both teams substituted freely, allowing seniors to see as much action as possible in their last game.

In seventh place in the league, Nebraska, ending its season got a 19-point performance from Charlie Jones, a senior. Bob Antulov scored 14 for the Cornhuskers.

Eleven Colorado players scored.

The Buffs ended the season with a 9-5 league record. Nebraska won five and lost nine.

Bluejays Roll To 89-78 Win

... McGRIFF, POINTER LEAD

Dallas (AP)—The deadly shooting of Elton McGriff and Fritz Pointer brought Creighton an 89-78 victory over Oklahoma City University Monday night and put the Bluejays into the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament.

Jim Barnes scored 42 points to lead Texas Western to a 68-62 victory over Texas A&M in the second game for another spot in the Midwest Regional tourney at Wichita, Kan., Friday and Saturday.

The 6-8 McGriff, playing with an aching back, scored 25 points before going out on fouls with 2:12 left.

Pointer wound up with 23 points.

But the way Creighton controlled the ball through the great rebounding of the 6-7 Paul Silas was a major reason for the victory. Silas also scored 15 points while he was at it.

Oklahoma City University broke in front when Jerry

Lee Wells sank a jumper with 36 seconds gone, but McGriff got a tip-in and Creighton and Oklahoma City scored neck and neck until Creighton took the lead on McGriff's free throw with 15 minutes left in the half.

Oklahoma City never could pull abreast although going within two points of the Jays on a couple of long shots by Bud Koper, a tip-in by Eddie Jackson and a layup by Wells with 12 minutes left in the game.

But McGriff went back to work along with Harry Forehand and the always present Silas, and that was Oklahoma City's last bid.

Silas had 27 rebounds to break his own record for the Southern Methodist Coliseum where he brought down 24 in 1962 against Memphis State—also in the NCAA first round.

Koper started a little slow but by the middle of the first period was swinging in style and he wound up as the high scorer of the night with 26 points.

PLAYER WINS PLAYOFF

...Palmer Finishes Second By One

Pensacola, Fla. (AP)—Gary Player shot one-under-par 71 Monday to win the playoff for the Pensacola Open Golf Championship, his first victory since winning the San Diego Open 14 months ago.

Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, had a par 72 and Miller Barber finished with 74 over the 6,380-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

The victory was worth $4,000 to Player, who had lost seven consecutive playoffs prior to this tournament. Palmer and Barber each got $2,300.

Player held the lead all the way after Palmer bogied the second hole and Barber bogied the fourth. Player made the turn with a 33 and a two-stroke margin while Palmer had 35 and Barber 36.

Palmer moved to within one stroke of the leader when he dropped a seven-foot birdie put on the 14th. Both Palmer and Player bogied the 16th, a par 3. Palmer blew a chance to tie it on the 17th when he missed a six-foot birdie putt. They parred the last two stroke behind when he over-shot the green on the 215-yard second hole.

Player had the lead to himself when Barber three-putted the fourth green from 40 feet. Player widened the gap to two strokes when he canned a 12-foot birdie putt on the fifth green.

Both Palmer and Player birdied the sixth hole, then Player's margin widened to three strokes when Palmer three-putted the seventh green.

All three players birdied the 495-yard eighth hole and Palmer got a stroke back when he holed a 25-footer on the ninth green after driving into trees.

A gallery of 4,000 watched the match under gray, over-cast skies.

Yanks To Fine Bouton For Not Signing Pact

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (AP)—General Manager Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees gave holdout pitcher Jim Bouton until midnight Wednesday to sign a contract or face a fine of $100 for every day he is absent.

"We have given Bouton a good contract and have gone as far as we can go," Houk said. "I don't feel I can meet his terms and do justice to the rest of the club."

K-State Coach Tex Winter substituted his entire first unit with five minutes to go in the first half and Iowa State closed the gap at 39-38 at intermission. The Cyclones were led by the 18-point shooting of Rich Froistad and Bob Ziegler.

Kansas State was pressed in the second half but took charge down the stretch.

The Wildcats finished conference play with a 12-2 record and a 20-5 overall mark. Iowa State ended the season with a 10-16 overall record and a 5-9 mark in the Big Eight.

Engineered better... backed better than any car in its class.

A 1964 Chrysler is engineered better... backed better than any car in its class. This is fact. Provable. Demonstrable. For example:

Chrysler is the only car in its class with a one-piece all-welded body. Stronger. Tighter. Stays quieter years longer. It's also the only body that's rust-proofed in seven dips plus six sprays. Then topped off with brighter, harder acrylic enamels. Then floated on a torsion-bar suspension. Which makes it ride smoother and corner steadier.

Those are solid facts about just one Chrysler feature. An even better one is the engine and drive-train warranty.* It's the only one in its price class that lasts for 5 years or 50,000 miles. That's how confident we feel about the engineering that goes into every Chrysler.

There's no doubt about it. If you want more solid satisfaction when you move into a medium-priced car, Chrysler is the buy. Try it. MOVE UP TO CHRYSLER

*Engineered better... backed better than any car in its class—5-year/50,000-mile warranty with this coverage: Chrysler Corporation warrants, for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, against defects in materials and workmanship and will replace or repair at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer's place of business, the engine block, head and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (excluding manual clutch), torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential, and rear wheel bearings of its 1964 automobiles, provided the owner has the engine oil changed every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first, the oil filter replaced every second oil change and the carburetor air filter cleaned every 6 months and replaced every 2 years, and every 6 months furnishes to such a dealer evidence of performance of the required service, and requests the dealer to certify (1) receipt of such evidence and (2) the car's then current mileage.

Five Class C Contenders Making Return Trip To State Meet

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

There's a familiar look to the entry list in the State Class C Basketball Tournament. Five of the contenders were in Lincoln last year.

Heading the list of returnees is Gibbon, which was runner-up to Utica in 1963. Spearheading the drive back to the state meet was Kurt Lauer, who pumped in 52 points in the 93-64 playoff win over Ansel.

Returning along with Gibbon are two of the Buffaloes' 1963 state meet victims — Stanton and Scribner. Tournament-wise Tecumseh and Sidney St. Patrick are also back from the 1963 field.

The title race is regarded as wide open with Gibbon, Henderson, Scribner and Stanton seeded on an equal basis.

The first round schedule at Johnson Gym sends Waverly against Scribner, Stanton against Tecumseh, Arapahoe against Henderson and Sidney St. Patrick against Gibbon.

The form chart:
WAVERLY (13-8)

Dick Hagemoer had only three lettermen back from 1963 team, but brought Vikings to peak for good tournament run . . . steady play marked tourney bid.

Vikings get good outside shooting from John Westland (6-0) and Randy Armstrong (5-9) . . . Rugged Kenny Kalkwarf (6-2), Don Heller (6-2) and Dwayne Stekman (5-11) are inside threats . . . Heller only junior among starters.

Outscored opponents by on-ly 56.4 to 54.0 in 21 games . . . Had wins over Class B teams Syracuse, Wahoo and Fremont Bergan during season.

SCRIBNER (15-3)
Trojans back for another title shot . . . lost to Gibbon in semifinals last year . . . Duane Rexroth has well balanced quintet

Mike Lamberty (6-3) was an all-tourney choice last year . . . David Dostal (6-1) another standout in scoring, rebounding . . . David Mauch (6-1), Roger Parr (5-10) and Conley Moeller (5-8) other vets.

Underclassmen Wendell Harper and Leland Thomas have helped . . . Scribner has 70.0 offensive mark, 58.0 defensive average.

STANTON (19-2)
Fred Letheby has brought veteran team back to Lincoln . . . Mustangs were triple overtime victims of Gibbon in first round last year.

Class B Madison only team Stanton couldn't handle during season . . . Depth regarded as best in Class C field on team that averaged 71.1 points to 49.7 by opponents.

Good size in Howard Hansen (6-2), Terry Hennrichs (6-4), Mike Siemsglusz (6-2), Van Poeschel (6-1½), Gary Benson (6-2) and Terry Denny (6-2).

TECUMSEH (13-8)
LeRoy Zentic's Indians making their fourth straight trip to state tournament . . . T-Towners had only 9-8 record in regular season, but six setbacks were at hands of Class A or B teams.

No exceptionally tall boys, but all starters are in the 6-0 to 6-2 range . . . Had team offensive average of 63.3 and defensive average of 61.0.

Top individual on this balanced club is senior Chuck Lacey (6-2), who tallied 101 points in the four tourney games leading to Lincoln . . . Other starters Rich Martin, Steve Waring, Mike Kavanaugh, Jim Stauffer.

ARAPAHOE (20-5)
Warriors have balance and depth . . . added playoff title this year after earning district honors with 18-3 mark last year.

Terry Draper, 6-1 jun.

lor, led Glen Vannier's club past Blue Hill in playoff with 26 points . . . Seniors Larry Tiedje (6-2) and Dee Hausler (6-1) and junior Kenny Elder (6-3) give height and balance to attack.

Tecumseh's offensive mark was 65.0, opponents averaged 55.8 . . . One of losses was to Class D contender Maywood.

HENDERSON (20-1)
Huskies haven't been at the state meet in 23 years . . . Only loss a one-pointer at Gibbon . . . Emerged from same district that provided 1963 champion (Utica) . . . Handed top-ranked East Butler its first loss in district finals.

Coach David Lynch has molded his offense around 6-6 senior Ron Regier . . . Big boy does most of the rebounding and inside scoring . . . Richard Kilewer (6-1) helps underneath with Stuart Friesen, Erland Bergen and Dan Traudt giving outside punch.

Huskies had 73.1 offensive mark and 48.3 defensive average . . . Slowed game down considerably in tournament series.

SIDNEY ST. PATRICK (19-5)
Irish back for second straight year . . . Hit full stride late in season after some disappointments during regular campaign.

Rollie Beran's club not especially big . . . junior standout Mike Thorpe (6-2) the biggest and best of the squad . . . Hit 34 points in playoff victory over Crawford . . . Joe Beyer, Bob Morris other standouts.

Western entry likes to run . . . Had 59.6 offensive average and 51.3 defensive mark.

GIBBON (18-4)
Buffaloes finished second behind Utica last year . . . Big Kurt Lauer (6-7), who made a shambles of the Class C scoring records, is again the mainstay in the Gibbon attack.

Foes must use two or three players to hold Lauer down . . . When defenses sag, juniors Don Kelper and Rich Robinson can cut loose from the outside . . . Both proved their ability in state meet last year.

Ed Bills' quintet had tough schedule, but managed a 76.3 offensive mark and held foes to 63.0 . . . Defense vulnerable, but Buffaloes can usually outscore opponents.

—STAR-STUDED GROUP HAS FOUR UNBEATEN TEAMS—

Class D Field One Of Strongest In History Of State Cage Tournament

By DON FORSYTHE
Prep Sports Writer

The eight teams surviving district and playoff tournaments to advance to the State Class D Basketball Tournament represent one of the strongest collections of small school basketball talent in tourney history.

The star-studded field includes four unbeaten teams, the defending champion, two once-beaten quintets, and a team which averaged two of its regular season losses to gain a state meet ticket.

The unblemished marks belong to Sumner, Herman, Maywood and Stapleton—seeded equally in the drawing for pairings.

De Witt, is the only one of the four 1963 champions returning to Lincoln.

The once-beaten clubs are Beaver Crossing and Orchard. Beaver Crossing lost to Hordville and Orchard to Elgin St. Boniface—two powers who didn't taste defeat until 'our-nant time.

Milligan brings "only" a 19-4 mark to the state meet, but the Roosters bumped off Shickley and Bruning, teams they had lost to earlier, to earn the Lincoln trip.

The first round pairings send De Witt against Sumner, Milligan against Herman, Maywood against Orchard and Stapleton against Beaver Crossing.

A closer look at the contenders:

SUMNER (23-0)
The Trojans have in Ron Simmons one of the greatest scorers in Nebraska high school annals . . . Has a career total of over 2,000 points and a season scoring average of over 35 points.

The 6-1 senior led Trojans to state with 46-point spree against previously unbeaten Hordville in playoff final.

Coach Charlie Thorell's club has good board punch in Ron Wiseman and Dennis Hansen, a pair of 6-2 scrappers . . . Team registered 83.4 offensive mark as compared to opponents' 55.2 . . . Simmons & Co. made their last Lincoln appearance two years ago.

DE WITT (19-2)
Defending champions have strong tournament tradition and play well under pressure . . . New coach this year is Bob Alderson.

Team leader is 6-3 senior Doug Tietjen, one of the top athletes in small school ranks . . . Poured in 34 points and led rebounding in playoff championship against Sterling.

Outside threat in the Panthers' attack is Larry Wattjes, who burned the nets for 65 points in 150-45 win over Clatonia.

Emporia Miler Wins At Federation Meet

... NU MILE RELAY TEAM IS SECOND

Milwaukee (AP) — Hurdler Camlen of Kansas State at Emporia won the U.S. Track and Field Federation indoor mile title with a 4:02.7 effort Monday night in the 13th annual "Journal Games" at the Arena.

Camlen, who has pushed Chicago Loyola's Tom O'Hara to sub four minute miles, set the pace virtually all the way, but the four-minute mark eluded him again.

In the absence of O'Hara, Camlen was in a class by himself as he made his bid to reach the four-minute barrier. He opened up a six-yard lead with a 59-second first quarter and hit the half-mile in 1:59 while pulling away from the field.

At the three-quarter mark, Camlen was clocked in 3:01 as he led by some 25 yards. The crowd of 10,159 tried to cheer Camlen to a greater effort, but the seconds ticked away before his "kick" pushed him across the finish.

Pat McNeal of Manhattan, Kan., moved up to take second place with a time of 4:08.5.

John Uelses, the former Marine now studying at LaSalle in Philadelphia, won the pole vault on the basis of fewer misses than Mel Hein of Southern California at 15 feet, 10 1/2 inches.

Uelses and Hein boosted the bar to 16-feet-5 in an attempt to better the indoor record of 16-feet-3 1/2 set by Brain Sternberg of the University of Washington last year. However, neither Uelses nor Hein came close to clearing the high level.

In the opening events of the second annual USTFF meet held in conjunction with the Journal Games, hurdlers Cliff Nuttall of Michigan and dashman Bob Moreland of Michigan set Federation indoor records.

Nuttall won the 50-yard high hurdles in 6.1 seconds, bettering the USTFF record of 6.3 by Wisconsin's Steve Muller in 1963. Nuttall's clocking was two-tenths of a second off the American and Journal Meet record set by Hayes Jones in 1961. Moreland bettered his USTFF record of 5.3 and equalled the Journal Games mark of 5.2 in defending his 50-yard dash laurels.

Moreland hit 5.2 in winning his heat and then won the final in 5.3 although he pulled up lame with a leg muscle injury.

Elzie Higginbottom of the University of Wisconsin set a meet and USTFF record in winning the first section of the 500-yard in 58.1 seconds. Higginbottom caught Oklahoma State's Jack Miller at the final turn and won by two strides in bettering the record of 58.6 seconds by Purdue's Dave Mills last year.

Robin Lingle of Missouri

won the 1000 for the second straight year.

Lingle was timed in 2:09.1 as he defeated Villanova's Tom Sullivan and Oregon State's Jan Underwood.

Allen Sloan of Kansas State set a USTFF record of 8:57.2 in winning the two-mile. Sloan won easily in shattering the mark of 8:59.7 set by John Macy of Houston last year.

Another Federation record fell as George Woods of Southern California also bettered the USTFF record of 57 feet, 3 inches with a best effort of 58-7 1/2.

The Nebraska mile relay team ran second behind Oklahoma State in the fourth section of the University mile division. Oklahoma State won in 3:10.1. Nebraska's time was 3:18.2.

Iba Gets 700th Victory

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma State blitzed archrival Oklahoma 80-47 Monday night and gave Coach Hank Iba the 700th victory of his illustrious basketball coaching career.

Iba, whose record for more than 30 years of college coaching is now 700-251, joined a select group with victory No. 780. Only two other active coaches, Ed Middle of Western Kentucky and Adolph Rupp of Kentucky have won more than 700 games.

Iba's Cowboys were in control almost all the way and went ahead to stay with 12 minutes left in the first half. Oklahoma stayed within range for half the contest and trailed only 39-32 at halftime. But the Cowboys outshot the Sooners 29-7 for the first 15 minutes of the second half to make a rout of it.

Oklahoma State was torrid from the floor, hitting 53.6% of its shots.

Baseball Not Only Weak Spot In Mets' Life

St. Petersburg, Fla. (AP)—The New York Mets returned here Monday from their successful Mexican venture but one member of the club's official family almost was left behind.

Manager Casey Stengel's wife Edna, misplaced her tourist permit in Mexico City and airport immigration officials refused to let her board the Mets' plane. After an hour's "negotiations" Mrs. Stengel signed a waiver and was permitted to depart with the club.

Another obstacle was overcome when the Mets arrived at Miami International Airport and pitchers Tracy Stallard and Jerry Hunsley, who had lost their health certificates, showed officials their vaccination marks and were allowed to enter the country.

Petitions Force Referendum On Beatrice Parking Plans

Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Beatrice — Petitions carrying more than 1,000 signatures have at least temporarily headed off a $179,000 off-street parking project that had been approved by the City Council.

The petitions in effect will force a referendum in the April 7 election to determine whether voters back the council's action. Actually presented on the ballot will be a recently passed ordinance permitting the lease of parking sites.

Spearheaded in part by Councilmen Ray Elwood and Les Warren, the petitions contained 1,031 signatures slightly over the required number. There was little discussion, although the ordinance had been a matter of controversy several weeks before passage.

City Atty. Anne Carstens repeated an earlier opinion that no enabling ordinance had been necessary in the first place, state statutes giving the council control over parking. The lease, drawn for 15 years by a specially created businessmen's group, still has not been signed by city officials.

Options Expiring
Regardless of the election outcome, purchase of the two downtown parking sites could possibly be in jeopardy because of the coming expiration of 60-day options. The incorporating merchants have been in the process of acquiring two downtown sites, which would revert to the city after all costs plus interest had

Grace Slack, who owns up to 40 acres between the city limits and the recreational facility.

Noting that two other property owners would be reimbursed their assessments by the club, Rist termed the district plan "unfair, arbitrary and unenforceable." Mrs. Slack's assessment would be $2,600, he noted, while the club had agreed to pay $4,800 as reimbursement to the city and two individuals.

Lincoln, Base Firemen Battle Blaze At Shop

An equipment repair shop near the Municipal Air Base road and U.S. 34 intersection was gutted early Monday afternoon by a fire that city and Lincoln Air Force Base firemen fought for three-quarters of an hour.

The 60-by-100 foot building was owned by the George Abel Construction Co. and was used for upkeep and repair of the firm's heavy-duty equipment.

Firemen said a "steam jenny" in the southwest corner of the building exploded, causing the entire wooden structure to burst into flames. Flames and smoke poured from the roof of the repair shop before the two teams of firemen got the blaze under control. At one point engines of the Lincoln Fire Department had to make a run to the base to be re-filled with water as there was no hydrant within seven blocks.

Construction company officials said no accurate estimate of loss could immediately be made.

Police Seek Gunman For Rape Attempt

Police Monday reported "no leads" in their search for a young white man who reportedly held three young Lincoln women at gunpoint in their homes early Saturday morning and attempted to rape one of them.

The man is described as being 18 to 20-years-old, five feet six inches to five feet seven inches tall, weighing about 140 to 150 pounds, with short dark hair.

The man went to the girls apartment in southeast Lincoln and knocked on the door at about 3 a.m. Saturday.

When one of the girls answered, the man identified himself as "a member of the FBI" and asked if he could come in. He said he was looking for another man and wanted to search the girl's home.

When the girl refused to let him in, he pulled a .22 caliber pistol from his belt and forced his way in.

He forced the three girls, two aged 21 and one 20, into a bedroom and told them to disrobe.

When the man attempted to rape one of the girls she grabbed the hand in which he held the gun and the three girls scuffled with him "for about five minutes." During the scuffle the gun was fired twice, one bullet penetrating the forehead of the bed, the second striking the bedroom door.

When one girl ran to the telephone and called the police, the man said he didn't "want to cause any more trouble" and fled.

Police are seeking information on anyone who saw the man or who has information on his whereabouts.

Police Seek Gunman For Rape Attempt

Police Monday reported "no leads" in their search for a young white man who reportedly held three young Lincoln women at gunpoint in their homes early Saturday morning and attempted to rape one of them.

The man is described as being 18 to 20-years-old, five feet six inches to five feet seven inches tall, weighing about 140 to 150 pounds, with short dark hair.

The man went to the girls apartment in southeast Lincoln and knocked on the door at about 3 a.m. Saturday.

When one of the girls answered, the man identified himself as "a member of the FBI" and asked if he could come in. He said he was looking for another man and wanted to search the girl's home.

When the girl refused to let him in, he pulled a .22 caliber pistol from his belt and forced his way in.

He forced the three girls, two aged 21 and one 20, into a bedroom and told them to disrobe.

When the man attempted to rape one of the girls she grabbed the hand in which he held the gun and the three girls scuffled with him "for about five minutes." During the scuffle the gun was fired twice, one bullet penetrating the forehead of the bed, the second striking the bedroom door.

When one girl ran to the telephone and called the police, the man said he didn't "want to cause any more trouble" and fled.

Police are seeking information on anyone who saw the man or who has information on his whereabouts.

'New Frontier' Record Is Key Issue

... SAYS HRUSKA IN FILING FOR RE-ELECTION

Sen. Roman Hruska said Monday the "over-riding" issue in the fall elections, not only for president but also for congressional seats, will be the record of the "New Frontier" during the present Democratic administration.

Hruska made the comment at a news conference after completing his filing for nomination for the U.S. Senate race on the Republican ticket.

The senator is serving his 12th year in Congress.

He served two years in the House of Representatives before being elected to the Senate.

He said he expects some of the main campaign issues to be:

- the conduct of foreign affairs.
- the manner in which fiscal affairs have been handled.
- the government's domestic policy, which includes the "dominant note of ever increasing the size and scope of the federal government."
- the agricultural policies of the present administration.

Farm Snubbed

He said that in his State of the Union message the President said nothing about the farm situation and that it is "obvious" that the President is "not in sympathy" with some of the things deemed of prime importance in the Midwest.

Hruska said he still has hopes of getting some type of legislation which would restrict beef imports.

He said, "The civil rights bill will not be passed in its present form in my judgment." He said he expects Southern senators will try to kill it by a filibuster but declined to say whether he would vote for cloture to cut off debate. "It depends on when the motion is made."

Hruska explained he thinks the bill should get a full debate and committee consideration before being voted upon. He noted he voted for cloture on the communications satellite bill a couple of years ago after it received a thorough study and debate.

Hruska said if Sen. Barry Goldwater gets 35% or more of the vote in the New Hampshire GOP presidential primary Tuesday it will be a victory for the conservative Arizona Republican.

EVERROAD QUILTS UNICAM RACE, EYES LT. GOVERNOR JOB

Omaha businessman John E. Everroad Monday completed his filing as a candidate for the Republican nomination as lieutenant governor after withdrawing as a candidate for the Legislature from the 4th District.

He declared that the office of lieutenant governor "should be elevated to its proper position in the administration of state government in the same manner as the vice president of the United States has been in recent years."

The lieutenant governor "should not only preside over the Legislature in a fair and impartial manner, but he should also participate by co-operating with state officials and Nebraska citizens in projects that will benefit our state," Everroad said.

There were four additional filings for legislative posts Monday:

- V. Deutsch Sullivan of Omaha filed for the 9th District;
- Roy M. White of Omaha for the 11th District;

Beatty Named To Aeronautics Unit

Gov. Frank Morrison Monday appointed a Kearney attorney, Charles H. Beatty, to the Nebraska Aeronautics Commission to succeed Francis V. Casey of Plattsmouth whose term expired March 1.

Beatty, 32, is a native Lincolnite. He received his pilot's license in 1952 and entered the Army Air Corps that year, assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division Aviation Company at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Released from active duty in 1957, he returned to NU, earning his law degree in 1959.

Reserve Commission

Beatty, who flew light aircraft for two and one-half years and has had experience in helicopter operation, held a commission in the Air Force Reserves until 1962 with the rank of first lieutenant.

Morrison also announced he will go to Washington March 19 to participate in a panel discussion at American University on the effect of state and local government on marketing.

Morrison also announced that Nebraska Day at the New York World's Fair is scheduled for July 19, 1964.

The Scottsbluff High School Band and Nebraska Wesleyan University Concert Choir, both of which have invited the governor's wife, Mrs. Maxine Morrison, to be a guest soloist, will participate in ceremonies scheduled that day.

The governor also announced he has appointed R. R. Baxter of Omaha, vice president and divisional manager of the Midwest Division of the Sheraton Hotel Corporation, to direct the hotel-motel participation in Nebraska's tourist development program.
